Something Blue That's A Little More You

May 19th, 2017 | Stephanie Dore

Just because it's a tradition, it doesn't mean that your "something blue" has to be something boring.

This good luck charm is said to represent purity, love, and fidelity, but frankly, blue is such a pretty color—that's reason enough to wear it.

We think a bride should pick wedding day jewelry that really lets her personality shine, so we've gathered some of our favorite pieces to help show off your unique style.

For The Bohemian

The boho bride is quirky and self-aware, with a glowing spirit and love of laid back adventure. If your wedding look is inspired by your flower crown and a love of organic details choose a unique piece with a simple, romantic aesthetic and hint of natural elements.

For The Spiritual

Weddings are all about meaningful motifs and moments, and the spiritual bride holds romantic symbols in high regard. Choose a delicate piece that features eternity symbols, crosses, and classic sapphire accents you can wear well beyond the big day.

For The Maverick

Think surprising details and an adventurous spirit. The maverick bride rejoices in the unexpected, with a fearless attitude and one-of-a-kind style. Choose jewelry that reflects that free spirit with original details, unique colorways, and subtle twists on classic styles.

The Glamour Girl

It's all about unabashed luxury and untamed elegance for the glam bride. She's well-traveled, takes pride in the finer things, and isn't afraid of over-the-top looks. Choose a piece that goes all-out with chunky gemstones and oversized shapes guaranteed to turn heads.

The Minimalist

Think simple and stunning details that pack a pint-sized punch. The minimalist bride loves essential pieces that go from big day to everyday with ease. Choose jewelry that has clean lines, classic materials, and style with staying power.
